As a global manufacturer of stretch films, we are aware of our responsibility towards our customers, business partners, other interested parties, and our employees. The foundation for this is continually improving our quality, environmental and energy performance. Thinking and acting sustainably is our roadmap to economic success.

Compliance with legal and other requirements, such as those of interested parties, standard requirements, and voluntary commitments, is a matter of course for us and is verified yearly with external audits. We are also committed to making a voluntary contribution to sustainability, environmental protection and energy management beyond the minimum legal requirements.

We have explored the context of our company and defined the resulting requirements for the nature and complexity of our integrated management system (quality, environment, energy). The risk and opportunity analysis produces objectives that are made to be measurable and therefore billable.

Customer satisfaction is our number-one priority. Our products and services are subject to quality-assurance processes and are continually improved in terms of both quality and sustainability. We provide our customers with our expertise in solving packaging problems.

Our product range is:

- ✓ tailor-made to suit our customers' needs,
- ✓ innovative
- ✓ sustainable (100% recyclable, bio-based, biodegradable, active contribution to reducing CO₂).

The origin of our bio-based materials is verified using a mass-balance concept.

Our key indicators identify potential for improvement as well as for deliberate control of the performance and efficiency of our business processes. The requirements of the integrated management system have been effectively implemented. Our processes are designed in such a way that their effects on the environment are kept to a minimum in addition to being controllable. The management team provides managers and employees alike with the highest possible level of support in implementing and constantly developing our management system in practice.

In practice this means:

- ✓ regularly reviewing the extent to which the necessary financial, personnel and infrastructural requirements are in place,
- ✓ making sure that all employees are involved in implementing and maintaining the integrated management system, and that necessary responsibilities are defined,
- ✓ regularly identifying and verifying environmental and energy impacts;
- ✓ avoiding unnecessary energy consumption and environmental pollution, sustainable action (REACH, RoHs)
- ✓ annually establishing and pursuing ambitious, measurable goals, plus targets to continually improve quality, environmental performance, energy efficiency and sustainability;
- ✓ regularly reviewing the management system with internal audits and guaranteeing compliance

Our employees are our greatest source of potential. Valuing them, giving them opportunities for personal and professional development, paying them fairly, and providing them with a safe and healthy working environment are crucial for us. We rely on straightforward communication on an equal footing.

We have pinpointed our supply chain and select our suppliers according to specific quality, environmental and sustainability criteria. Our business partners are required to act sustainably on an economic, ecological and social level in order to continually improve their quality and to work in a customer-oriented manner. We assess our suppliers' performance on an annual basis. We are convinced that quality and sustainability can be nothing less than a shared goal across the entire supply chain.
